Art Spirituality with Kintsugi

Beverlee Klopfenstein,
Soul Care Artisan

Kintsugi ...Making Broken Things Beautiful (or Mixed Media Kintsugi). Kintsugi is the Japanese tradition of mending broken things with gold and making the broken piece valuable again. I will teach a process using broken pieces of pottery, china, and glass and together make a decorative piece to lean against a window and catch the light shining thru. There are a few other mixed media ways to experience the process of kintsugi that we will explore. You are also welcome to bring a small broken treasure to restore. Kintsugi is a spiritual practice...but also fun! A satisfying, healing experience as the symbolism of making broken things new is carried on into our lives.

Beverlee Klopfenstein is a decorative artist who paints murals & glazes walls to make homes & businesses ~ and hopefully the world ~ a more beautiful place! Beverlee will bring her creativity and love of doing art and share with you the amazing things that can happen in a soul when the hands are in motion painting or 'making'. She leads retreats & classes in Praying In Color, Kintsugi and related mixed media art, thru Experiential Ministries (www.exmin.org) the non-profit founded by Mark & Beverlee Klopfenstein.

Cost: $50 per person (all materials included)

Extra supplies to journey on in the process are available for purchase if desired
